Lying on the northwestern tip of the Philippines and bounded on the west by the China Sea, the Ilocos Region is naturally endowed with a lovely landscape of sand dunes, mountains and coastal plains. The geographic conditions create a society of industrious people and sturdy structures. Ilocos is known for tobacco, which remains an important crop and a source of income for most farmers.

Vigan, the capital city of Ilocos Sur is known for its Spanish-inspired architecture as shown in its houses and churches. Laoag, the capital city of Ilocos Norte, has an international airport and several excellent resort hotels.

The white beaches of Paqudpud, the farthest end of Ilocos Norte towards the Laoag-Alacapan Road, are a veritable paradise.
